1. TRAINING OBJECTIVES AND COMPETENCES TO BE ACQUIRED

The general objective of the Finance and Banking taught in English program of study is to form specialists with adequate competence in the field of finance and banking, specialists that are oriented towards excellence, efficiency and performance.

The objectives and profile of competences developed according to the needs of the work market and with the national qualification plan is presented in synthesis bellow and detailed in the disciplines' descriptions.

The specific objectives are aiming at:

- The understanding of the processes that are specific for the financial and banking field and also of the techniques that are used in financial operations;
- The acquiring of basic abilities/skills/knowledge needed in the financial-banking environment through learning, a focus being set on the acquisition of concepts, techniques, methods and instruments that can lead to performance in this field.

Professional competences (according to the RNCIS standards)

- Adequate use of concepts, theories, methods and instruments of financial nature in the private and public entities;
- Gathering, analysing and explaining data and information concerning economic and financial issues;
- Performing economic and financial tasks at the level of private or public entities/organizations;
- Doing financial operations and transactions that are specific to public or private entities/organizations;
- Implementing plans and budgets in private and public entities/organizations;
- Applying the financial decisions in different private and public entities/organisations.

Transversal competences (according to the RNCIS standards)

- Using the principles, regulations and ethical professional values in the rigorous, efficient and responsible work strategy;
- Identifying the role and responsibilities of each person of a multi-specialised team and using efficient networking techniques inside the team;
- Identifying continuous training opportunities and using in an efficient way the learning resources and techniques for the personal development.

2. OFFERING A FLEXIBLE TRAINING. REQUISITES

A flexible study program is insured through optional disciplines, additional non-compulsory disciplines as well as complementary ones.

The optional disciplines (chosen ones) are offered for the 3 – 6 semesters and they are included in optional packages of disciplines that complete the study track of the student. The track of study is chosen by each individual student, before the start of the university year that the optional discipline is offered for.

Additional non-compulsory disciplines are offered for the 1-6 semesters by the department or faculty that manages the program of study or can be chosen from the packages of disciplines offered by other.
